

Assassinations counsel quits

Richard Sprague, chief counsel of the House Assassinations Committee, has resigned after members convinced him the House would kill the investigation if he stayed on. The House was voting today on whether to continue the probe of the murders of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. Page 64.

Boston Globe, March 30, 1977

D.